Pepperell Fire Set

PEPPERELL—An investigation by the fire department and fire inspectors has indicated that yesterday's fire which almost completely destroyed a shed at the Bemis Bros. Bag company was set.

It is reported that at about the time of the fire an explosion was heard, and officials investigating the machine-filled shed have found evidence of gasoline.

An insurance investigator claimed that if any of the machinery was damaged to the extent that a loss of production would result, total damage could run as high as $50,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Race wire services, a legal halfway of the illegal handbook betting business, come under scrutiny today in Senate racketeering hearings.

The Senate investigations subcommittee sought to explore: (1) the illegal, high-speed business of betting on horses; (2) the winners in every race; (3) whether new federal laws to control it are needed.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. John F. McClellan, D-N.J., has heard testimony that anti-telephone access to such information is a lifeline of the big-time, big-money business of running bookies.

The subcommittee received evidence Wednesday a map prepared by the Internal Revenue Service showing a flow of telephone calls to and from known gamblers in the United States and Canada.

Harold Wallace, an IRS agent, said he did not know the nature of the calls, but had established they were between gamblers. He named Boston as one of the centers from which known gamblers made frequent calls to gamblers in several other cities in the United States and in Montreal and Toronto.

In this third day of the subcommittee's hearings on organized crime and gambling, McClellan announced he would look into the Boston slugging and vice law testimony from Rhode Island jury officials.

The subcommittee has heard testimony that gamblers are clearing the government out of billions of dollars of income and other federal taxes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gambling losses have been heavily enforced at the local level in Massachusetts, a Boston attorney who was counsel to the state crime commission has told the senate racketeering subcommittee.

"It isn't just the fault of the police," Thomas J. McArdle testified yesterday. He also blamed the legislative and judicial branches of local governments—and public distrust.

Another Massachusetts witness, Angelo Rossetti, is to testify today. Subcommittee Counsel Jerome S. Alderman said Rossetti runs the Sportsday Weekly in Boston.

McArdle was counsel to the Massachusetts state crime commission from 1953 to 1957. He reviewed the commission's studies of gambling in Massachusetts, but said he has no current information on telephone networks used by bookmakers to receive and disseminate information on horse races.

In Boston, State Public Safety Commissioner Frank S. Giles reacted with a warning that state police will step in if local enforcement agencies can't handle illegal gambling.

"We are definitely going to take some action," Giles said. He said state police will check the "race wire situation."

McArdle said enactment of the federal gambling tax stamp law, which requires bookmakers to register and pay a $50 tax, halted illegal bookmaking in 1951, but only for six weeks.

He said the bookies feared crackdowns by the internal revenue service and stopped operations—but started up again after they found the IRS "didn't have men enough to really do the job . . . (and) would rely on local arrests" to spot violations of the tax law.

McArdle said the bookmakers were left without a wire service to collect and send out results to the bookies and information when the Old Continental Press Service collapsed.

He said they were "desperate for this information, particularly race results," and used makeshift methods to get it.

McArdle said Harry Maltzman and Phil Garber of Boston started a new result service early in 1952. In 1953, he said, a man named Arthur Marcus tried to do the same thing, seeking "altered information from newspapers."

He testified a Frank Ferraro and some associates then decided to launch a big wire service. The Ferraro group, he said, obtained an electronic device to help speed race information by telephone to clients. McArdle said they also sought permission to operate a life-type writer service, saying it was for a string of gauges.

The subcommittee said Ferraro now is serving a prison term in connection with a "hot bond" deal.

McArdle said men named James Ross and Bernard Friedman also were in the Ferraro group.

He testified the group set up an outpost in a farm overlooking Lincoln Downs race track in Rhode Island. A man stationed there with binoculars would see the finish line and the board listing odds and race winners, he said.

McArdle said Raymond

Patriarca helped persuade the reluctant barn owner to permit use of the property. But McArdle said he was not implying any strong arm tactics were used.

He said Patriarca "by reputation" is a racketeer in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Patriarca has been subpoenaed but may not be called as a witness, Alderman said.

McArdle said "Angelo Rossetti and I believe, Ross," visited Lincoln Downs once to install a telephone at the lookout post in the barn.

McArdle also told the subcommittee about a microphone found connected to a telephone line at Suffolk Downs race track in Boston.

He said no one ever proved who put it there. Investigation of that incident was "one of the most confused law enforcement situations I have ever seen," McArdle said.

He said if law enforcement agencies had cooperated in the investigation they could have found out who owned the microphone.

Latest Red Move Puts "Little Iron Curtain" Around West Berlin

By David L. Bowen

AP News Service Writer

One more chapter has been added to the long, sometimes dramatic, often monotonous East-West dispute.

The arguments started before any of the World War II allies reached Berlin. During the 18 years dispute has raged, the issues frequently have become cloudy.

Basically, there are two reasons this particular point of contact between East and West has created so much more friction than other points along the European border between East and West.

The city of Berlin lies 110 miles behind the main dividing line between Communist nations and the West.

Unlike all other East-West borders, the one dividing Communist East Berlin and free West Berlin was until this month easily crossed in both directions.

THESE TWO special conditions stemmed from the wartime agreement among the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union on how they would occupy the territory of the enemy.

Each of these powers was given a zone of control in the German capital — and since Berlin fell deep inside the Russian zone — that city was given a unique status. It would be occupied by all four, with each holding a sector and all having a voice in the city's overall control. To avoid a ridiculous fragmentation, passage between zones was to be relatively free. The Western powers received guarantees of their right to travel from their zones in Western Germany by specified road, canal and air routes through the Russian zone to their sectors in Berlin.

No one has ever been completely satisfied with the wartime arrangements. As the Communists employed all available forms of harassment—including at one time an 11-month blockade—the western Allies united their zones, and worked to exploit position as a legal gap in the otherwise impenetrable Iron Curtain.

Naming of Dhan and McLean last July 5 drew a storm of protest from the county commissioners. They complained that filling of the two new posts by the retirement board without consulting the county commissioners or personnel board was usurpation of the commissioners' authority.

The attorney general's ruling is expected today or tomorrow.

Zhukov in Rare Display

MOSCOW—Marshal Georgi Zhukov was reported today to have made one of his rare public appearances since he was ousted from the Soviet Union's top military post in 1958. Officials at the Japanese textile exhibit exhibition in Moscow's Gorki park said Zhukov arrived unannounced, toured the exhibits and wrote in the guest book "Long live international trade, the path toward peace."

The former defense minister signed the statement "Marshal Zhukov," the officials said. They added that he wore civilian clothes and appeared to be in good health. Zhukov is seen periodically around Moscow, although he does not appear at official functions. He is understood to be living quietly in retirement in a Moscow suburb and working on his memoirs. A hero during World War II, Zhukov was dismissed from his defense post by Premier Nikita Khrushchev because he reportedly objected to strong Communist party control over the armed forces.

Fire Chief William Lattrell Dies of Injuries In Explosion At His Home Mon.

"Best Little Fair State Of New York" Has Greatest Success In Its History

"The Best Little Fair in the State of New York," the Essex County Agricultural Fair at Westport was the finest ever held since its inauguration from every point of view from which a fair of its size can be judged. From the standpoint of education, building of worthwhile interest on the part of youth and adult, giving of pleasure to the lovers of horse flesh, knowledge of latest in farm and home equipment right through to a clean little midway, it can be said of this year's fair, the 105th, that it was a complete success.

Some 14,000 paid admissions during the four days of its run, Children's Day Thursday and the Dandelion Friday evening flooding the grounds to capacity. The fireworks Monday night, despite of not too fine weather in the early evening, brought out a large gate.

The Beauty Contest, which was won by Joan Currier of Willboro, is increasing in popularity each year, some 15 lovely young ladies being judged in bathing suits. Second place was won by Sally Heagerty of Ticonderoga and third by Marian Lettice of Westport. Five judges brought from outside the county made the decisions.

The capacity of the grandstand was overtaxed and persons were turned away from obtaining seats there for the harness racing, interspersed with fine vaudeville acts. If the fair continues to grow as indicated by this year, it will be necessary for the directors to take into consideration the building of additional grandstand space.

Harness racing has been the backbone of a small fair which has grown to great size, and we sight the Champlain Valley Fair at Essex Junction, Vt., as such an example. Purses amounting to $4,000.00 were raised for at Westport this year to bring 63 entries from the county and as far away as Albion, N. J. and Bennington, Vt.

The entries this year in the displays of 4-H, Grange and Home Bureau were the largest ever and more branches of each group had more entries, 14 adult and two juvenile Granges and 10 units of Home Bureau being represented. A separate story on the 4-H showing appears in another column of this paper.

It took six tents to accommodate the poultry, horse and cattle entries, some of the latter preventing the top notch chains and stables of the surrounding country. The automobile dealer displays was the largest in years, nine makes being represented and the home appliance and farm machinery exhibitions brought the very latest labor-savers in greater amounts than ever.

Editor's Note: "Our fair" is growing and already a credit to its sponsors. The Board of Supervisors of Essex County, Daniel Walker, who has managed the fair the past four years should be given great credit for the great amount of work he has put into the fair with no compensation except that of seeing it grow and widen in scope and interest otherwise his work is great.

Let's not forget the many years of progressive labor of Harry Allen of Essex, for years the fair's president, who maintained its steady growth and expansion except that of seeing it grow and widen in scope and interest otherwise his work is great.

At Port Henry Free To All

Under the watchful eyes and guiding hands of celebration chairman Mayor George Clements, and co-chairman Francis Conroy, supported by an active committee of fellow citizens, the 1953 production of the annual Port Henry Fire Department Labor Day Celebration is nearing completion. Final arrangements for all phases of the day and night festivities have been completed. If the long range forecast for fair weather is forthcoming this year's performance will be one of the greatest show spectacles in the great Champlain Valley area.

The program will open promptly at 8:30 a. m. and will operate continuously until midnight. All events will be free to everyone. The Port Henry Fire Department makes no admission charge for any of the events which each year they stage and produce as a public service.

There will be races and a pie eating contest for the youngsters, two five yard baseball games and one semi-pro contest for those who enjoy the national game. Six of the largest best bands and drum corps from the great northeast and the Province of Quebec will furnish continuous music and will also participate in the gigantic parade which will move out from the American Legion Home at 2 p. m.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey is sending his special representative to Port Henry on Labor Day and he will deliver the principal address following the parade. Other state and local officials will also be present. Following the remarks of these officials the colorful Drum and Bugle Corps will stage a lengthy exhibition of precision marching. The annual horse fight will again be staged between the two Port Henry fire companies.

There will be a massed band concert in the evening. Drum Corps drills and ten acts of top level vaudeville and the program will finally taper off with a big street dance with music furnished by a favorite orchestra.

At this time the committee in charge of the current year's activities wish to extend a very sincere and hearty invitation to everyone to come to Port Henry on Labor Day and enjoy a full day of the best in entertainment.

Before a gathering of over 300 clergy, sisters and laity from numerous communities of Champlain Valley, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Benjamin H. Stas, V. F. dean of the Port Henry deanery, presided at the colorful rites at which the first American Shrine of Our Lady of Hope was dedicated on the grounds of the Oblate Scholasticate at Essex, this past Sunday afternoon.

Set against the distant background of the Adirondacks and facing the waters of Lake Champlain, the outdoor altar, was ablaze with summer flowers which surrounded the imported statue of the Blessed Virgin portrayed as she appeared at Pontmain on January 17, 1871.

The sermon for the occasion was preached by Very Rev. Raymond J. Hunt, O. M. I., of Washington, D. C., provincial of the Eastern Province of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. In his inspiring address Father Hunt drew a parallel between the little French village in which the apparition occurred and the village of Essex with its setting of unsurpassed natural beauty.

Miss Willboro

Jean Currier, queen of the Essex County Fair

Remarkable that devotion to Our Lady of Hope, although one of the oldest in the Catholic Church, has been practically unknown in this country. Father Hunt stated that the American Oblates were pledged to bring Mary's timely message of hope through the cross to a nation that stood in great need of hope.

In so doing they will be following in the tradition of the French Oblates who built the beautiful basilica at Pontmain, now one of the greatest pilgrimage spots in France.

The ceremony was concluded with the recitation of Novenas to Our Lady of Lourdes, followed by Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The Rev. Francis V. McConville, O. M. I., pastor of St. Joseph's, Essex, was celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Laurence E. Mallette, pastor of St. Philip's, Willboro.

The Rev. Daniel F. Lortie, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes, Schenectady, was concelebrant. The Oblate Scholasticate choir provided a varied program of English and Latin hymns, including the new "Hymn to Our Lady of Hope," the solo part of which

Early morning explosion wrecks home completely.

The flash fire ignited myriad spots in the house on both floors. The father, fatally injured, made his way from cellar to first floor and where he lay by his wife, and on to the top floor to save his children.

Lloyd Bissett, assistant chief of the fire department, and Henry Rock, who live on the same street arrived almost immediately on hearing the explosion as did Lieutenant John Dwyer, whose home is almost opposite the latter's. The house is a shambles. Kirks neighbors and friends have taken the family to their heart-throbs and arrangements are being made for temporary living quarters for them in the Callahan's.

Fire Chief Carries Children To Safety From 2nd Floor Before Collapsing

William Lattrell, chief of the Keeseville Volunteer Fire Department, horribly burned early Monday morning when an explosion wrecked his home on Church street, from which he heroically removed his children, died early Tuesday morning at Physicians Hospital, Plattsburgh, where his life was despaired of from the time of admittance.

His wife and seven children, who were in bed at the time of the explosion, escaped unharmed though furniture was cast about like shavings from a saw, ceiling fell as the house bulged and fires were started in many places on both floors of the two-story home in the dash fire caused by the explosion.

The people of Keeseville, of whom every last man woman and child knew "Bill" were stunned to hear of his death following his heroic efforts resulting in the carrying of his children down a ladder to safety after which he collapsed in the arms of his fireman. Keeseville folk were so saddened that the village seemed to be talking in whispers and the jangle of the horn of a tourist was nerve-racking.

Attendance at the funeral Thursday morning was the largest ever remembered here, for of tributes of unusual beauty and design piled high on the grave and over the newly purchased grave of unusual beauty and design, where loyal and saddened members of his fire-fighters remained until the grave was closed and the flowers were arranged to their satisfaction.

Innumerable friends of the dead chief and his wife are rallying around her to provide temporary shelter for her and her seven children. The first born, William Jr., is Airman 1st Class United States Air Force, now stationed at Chanticleer, Ill. He arrived home Tuesday evening.

Red Cross Action The ability and quick action of the American Red Cross has been exemplified in an outstanding manner in this Keeseville tragedy. The Red Cross Chapter here, in a few hours for immediate relief of the bereaved family and in uniting with its mother, the Airman Lattrell, who was released from duty in Illinois Monday afternoon and started on his way home through the request of the Red Cross.

Gordon Green, home service chairman of the Keeseville branch of the Red Cross, and Frank Gibson, of Westport, executive secretary of the Essex County Chapter of the Red Cross moved without hesitancy and arranged for funds of $100 for immediate relief, for whole blood and plasma for the return of Airman Lattrell who had just returned to duty after a leave at home and nursing care.

All this from the Red Cross, which was led down by the people of Keeseville in its last drive for funds in support of just such disaster, its support of local men in service, its gamma globulin program for the fight of poliomyelitis and its many other humanitarian activities.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Berube Administrator Of Ogdensburg Diocese In a release from the Chancery office at Ogdensburg it was made known that Rt. Rev. Msgr. Louis D. Berube, rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, has been named administrator of the Ogdensburg Diocese following Bishop McEntegart's transfer from the See of Ogdensburg to the Thruway of Arundel in order that he may give his full time to the rectorship of Catholic University.

According to the canon law of the church, the deacon cannot marry until August 19, and were this officially informed of the transfer of Bishop McEntegart, the senior consultant then called the deacons into session to choose an administrator to be head of the diocese until the appointment of the new Bishop of Ogdensburg.

Early Morning Explosion Wrecks Home Completely

The tragedy occurred about 5:30 Monday morning when Fire Chief Lattrell was in the act of igniting the gas on a side-alter heater in the cellar of his home. Mr. and Mrs. Lattrell had been in the kitchen previous to leaving for work and the side of the heater in the cellar of his home. It is believed that the match intended to light the heater set off the explosion, resulting in the death of the chief.

The blast from the explosion, filling the house with smoke, reached to the first and second stories of the home in a split second, causing a furniture-blasting, blowing windows, shredding the curtains, laying beds flat and leaving the ceiling and floorboards of the structure bulged. Luckily, the four-year-old baby of the family had previously left his bed and gone into bed with his brother as his crib was demolished by a heavy chest and the ceiling.

The flash fire ignited myriad spots in the house on both floors. The father, fatally injured, made his way from cellar to first floor and where he lay by his wife, and on to the top floor to save his children.

Lloyd Bissett, assistant chief of the fire department, and Henry Rock, who live on the same street arrived almost immediately on hearing the explosion as did Lieutenant John Dwyer, whose home is almost opposite the latter's. A 1966 view of the Bucksport seminary

Former Bucksport seminary sold

By David Platt
Of the NEWS Staff

BUCKSPORT — The former St. Joseph's Seminary in Bucksport was sold late last week to a New York man who reportedly plans to develop it into apartments for the elderly.

The seminary, which had been closed since 1971, consists of two buildings. There is a large complex containing a library, a chapel, classrooms, a dormitory and a gym. Parts of the complex were formerly separate buildings but have been connected by more recent construction. The other building on the 12.5 acre property is a house, Morris Hall built in 1852, which formerly housed faculty members.

When it was in operation, St. Joseph's was a "minor seminary," or private school for high-school age students considering the priesthood. The Oblates of Mary Immaculate, a Catholic order with regional headquarters in Lowell, Mass., owned and operated the school.

The buyer, Aaron Gleich, had been negotiating with the Oblate Fathers for the purchase of the seminary property since last summer.

The exact sale price was not available, but the Oblate Fathers were asking $185,000.

Since the seminary closed its doors to students, two members of the Oblate Fathers, Rev. Roland Gaulin and Brother Donat Daigle, have been living on the premises to maintain them.

Gaulin will leave Wednesday for Lowell, Mass. Daigle will move to the Oblate Retreat House in Willimantic, Conn.

Gleich, the buyer, plans extensive renovations to the facility, converting the dormitory into apartments for the elderly, according to sources in the Oblate community. He also plans, according to the same sources, to construct 16 two-family units on the former ball field at the seminary.

The ball field has been a popular playing-field in Bucksport for many years.

Rev. Norman Parent, the Provincial of the order, said Monday he thought the decision to sell had been made shortly after the school closed. He said, however, that he had only in administration for a year, and that he was unsure about decisions made before he took over.

Since the 1971 closing, Bucksport citizens and others had discussed two proposals for the use of the seminary property.

One plan would have set up a training center for Vietnam veterans. It was rejected by the state Department of Education in 1972.

A second proposal, put forth in 1975, called for town purchase of the property for a community center. Bucksport offered $130,000, but the offer was rejected by the Oblate Fathers.

When Gleigh first explained his plans to town officials last summer, he raised the possibility that he might donate Morris Hall, built in 1852, to the town as an historic building. But the fate of Morris Hall was not announced at the time the seminary changed hands last week.

The school was purchased by the Oblate Fathers in 1941. Previously it had operated as the Eastern Maine Conference Seminary for about 80 years. In 1961, it enrolled 143 students, but by 1971 enrollments had dropped.

Declining enrollments, increasing costs, and a shortage of Oblate teachers were given as reasons for closing the seminary in 1971.

Vermonters Cause Turmoil At County Jail

Three Vermonters, serving sentences for vagrancy, caused a county jail at Elizabethtown, stirred up a commotion at the jail, Wednesday the last day of their sentence.

Elizabeth Jane Bradley of Lincoln, Norma Jean Grant of Winouand and Gerald Thibault of Burlington, committed July 16 by Justice of the Peace Bradford of Crown Point on vagrancy charges, were picked up at Crown Point State Park.

According to Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Crowley, in charge of the county jail, in the absence of Sheriff Davies, who is attending a jail management school at St. Lawrence University, the three were unruly, belligerent and uncooperative prisoners.

Reports that tear gas was used are emphatically denied by Crowley, who stated that the three of the five department went to the jail on the call of someone not connected with the jail department, were informed that everything was under control and left.

Deputy Sheriff Crowley stated to your reporter that the incident had been greatly magnified.

Pageantry at Fort Ticonderoga with High Ranking Dignitaries Climaxes Conoecade

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Governor Robert T. Stafford of Vermont and a host of U. S. and foreign government representatives were at Fort Ticonderoga Sunday to welcome the 350th Champlain Anniversary Pageantry Conoecade as it climaxed its journey down Lake Champlain.

Also on hand to greet Champlain and his 50 Algonquin Indians were some 50 Troquois Indians for a dramatic re-enactment of the historic battle on that site in July, 1800.

Upwards of 10,000 persons watched the pageantry and the official program, lining the walls of the fort and moving along spacious Trembling Meadows on the lake shore. Again, Champlain's sacred headdress, first captured by the British, was displayed.

In a high point of the afternoon program, Assemblyman Grace Johnson of Ticonderoga, chairman of the Champlain Commission on the Lake Champlain Basin which is sponsoring the Champlain Anniversary Memorial, presented engraved gold medals to the three visiting dignitaries.

AnSable Valley Tel. Co. Installs Modern Service In Silver Lake Area

Since early spring, construction by the AnSable Valley Telephone Company, has been underway on a new telephone system for the Silver Lake area. This area, now served by the AnSable Forks 13 and 15 lines, has in the past presented serious engineering and economical obstacles to the installation of modern communication service, because of the sparse and widely scattered population, heavy induction from power lines, and heavily wooded areas.

Experiments, however, carried on with newly developed carrier equipment indicate a means of overcoming these difficulties and at the same time provide means of economical expansion if further developments occur in the Silver Lake area.

The construction now underway provides a new pole line and a new two-wire copper circuit extending to Silver Lake. At the terminals of the new circuit, the unbalanced carrier equipment will be installed capable of serving up to 110 subscribers. There are now 27 in the area, with fully selective ringing phones and high grade voice transmission. Since the construction will be new and employ only a single pair of wires, service in the area should be much less frequent and restoration after storms much easier and quicker than in the past.

Carrier equipment, essentially a radio circuit confined to the physical telephone circuit which converts normal voice frequency of around 1,000 cycles to from 27,000 to 35,000 cycles. This equipment can be arranged to provide as many as eleven channels over a single pair of wires without interference. It is hoped to have

LTI-State students begin moving chores as school year nears end

LOWELL — Students from Lowell State College and Lowell Technological Institute packed their bags and evacuated their in-school living quarters this week, anxiously anticipating their summer holiday.

Seniors, however, remain in their respective dorms until Sunday, when they will graduate during commencement exercises, at L.T.I. and L.S.C.

Those undergraduate students who have already left for the summer are either going home for the summer where they will work in local areas around their residences or will be traveling to one of the many New England summer resorts where they will be working as waitresses, musicians, cooks, and a variety of other jobs.

SOME politically active students will be working in conjunction with organizations who are promoting local candidates for the up and coming November election.

A few fortunate students will be traveling abroad to further their education in the area of foreign languages. Some of these students will be joining their parents on a European holiday, traveling to Paris, the port of Marseille, Italy, and other sunny places.

Five children hurt! Storm causes heavy damage in suburban Lowell towns

By RALPH JACOBS
Sun Staff Reporter

LOWELL—Five small children were injured last night, one now reported in critical condition and another serious, when the family station wagon was wrecked and apparently overturned at the height of the season's first serious electrical storm which hit suburban area towns last night.

Kimberly McKenney, 5, and her brother Mark, 2, both of Pine Street, Nuttings Lake section of Billerica, are hospitalized with serious injuries at Boston's Children's Hospital. Kimberly, according to hospital authorities is reported in critical condition and Mark is serious. Both, they said, suffered head injuries.

Three other children, Lorraine and Richard McKenney and Timothy S. Conrad, 12, suffered less serious injuries and are reported as "doing fine" in the Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn. Lorraine, 6, and Richard, 7, both had lacerations.

The McKenney children's mother, Mrs. Carol McKenney, who police say was the operator of the car, was also taken to Choate but after a check by doctors was released. She had apparently sustained no injuries.

Although it appears neither the police nor the firemen who responded seem to know how the accident occurred, it appears the station wagon was overturned and one or more of the children were pinned underneath. Reports indicate that the fire department received the first call (just after 8:30 p.m.) and the caller said "there is a car overturned and someone is pinned under it."

Other officials reporting on the accident this morning believe that someone in an effort to extricate the children may have uprooted the vehicle before police and fire officials arrived at the scene.

The Conrad boy, whose injuries reportedly include lacerations of the face and the right high and middle convulsions of the scalp and chest told police

"a white car cut us off the road."

Billerica Patrolman Edward Gas, concerned that if he waited too long for the ambulance, it could endanger lives placed the two most serious injured children in his cruiser and accompanied by one of the firemen departed immediately. Officer Harold Blake, took the other three children, he was also accompanied by a fireman.

The ambulance, apparently detained on another matter, caught up with the two cruisers at Choate and doctors immediately transferred Kimberly and Mark for the trip to Boston.

The storm, which apparently caused a number of power failures, and several small fires, was also considered partly responsible for five automobile accidents in Chelmsford, two of which also resulted in injuries and hospitalization.

The first accident according to Chelmsford police, was on Northern Ave. when a car operated by David Sadowski, 17, of 65 Northern Ave. left the road and struck a mail box and utility pole. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital and admitted for treatment of back, head and leg injuries.

At 7:45 p.m. two cars side-swiped on Route 3 near the rotary Albert Gregoire of 5 Parkview Ave., Lowell, was taken to St. Joseph's for treatment. Gregoire was operator of one car and the other was driven by Lawrence Maillard, 31, of Lilliston. Police said there were no injuries reported in the other accident.

One fireman in Drauc was overcome by heat and exhaustion after responding with other Drauc firemen to a call on Sicular Ave. where an unfinished home was struck by lightning.

George Andrews, who at first men at the scene was taken to a hospital where he was treated and released.

Drauc officials said the lightning struck the ground near the home being constructed by Edward Surtado and then snaked its way into the attic.

Chelmsford and Billerica fire officials also report strange behavior patterns by the lightning.

In Chelmsford lightning damaged electrical wiring at the home of William F. Dempsey at 20 Marose Ave. about 5:30 last night, at the height of the storm. Firemen from the Center station responded on the alarm. They reported the lightning apparently struck a pine tree near the house and then bounced off against a television antenna on the roof of the attached garage. It followed this line into the house where it blew a fuse. The house itself appeared to be undamaged.

KUHN SEEKING TO KEEP HIS CITIZENSHIP

Former Bund Leader is One of 27 to Answer Proceedings

Opening a fight to retain his American citizenship, Fritz Kuhn, former leader of the German-American Bund now serving time in Dannemora State Prison as a "common thief," declares in a letter that he had "always expressed belief in the constitution."

His plea was addressed to U.S. Attorney Mathias Correa, according to the Associated Press, said that Kuhn was the only one of 27 Bund members with denaturalization proceedings against them to file an answer.

Two Bundists have been interviewed by the attorney after consenting to denaturalization action, and the remainder will have their naturalization automatically revoked and will be arrested by F.B.I. agents immediately, Correa said. The deadline for filing appeals passed at 4:30 p.m. today.

In his handwritten letter to Correa, Kuhn said that he had made various offers to Congress and to the Department of Justice asking that the Bund be outlawed if it were found to be undesirable for any reason.

Kuhn said that denaturalization proceedings against him in 1938 were dismissed and that in the same year Congress and the Department of Justice made a full and complete investigation of him and the Bund without filing a complaint.

High officers of the government, Kuhn said in his letter, had spoken at different meetings of the Bund and "these officers and both political parties have asked the Bund for its support in election matters."

Correa said that he had sent the letter back to Kuhn with instructions to file an affidavit and a pauper's oath to cover the $5 filing fee.

Kuhn was convicted of grand larceny and forgery in November, 1939, in connection with thefts from the Bund, and is serving a term of two and a half to five years.

VAGRANT FINDS ESCAPE IS NOT ALWAYS EASY

One of Pair Brought Here Free Few Minutes from Sheriff's Deputies

A youth, charged with vagrancy, tried without success yesterday afternoon to make a get-away while being detained following his arrest, together with another New York youth, by State Police of the Keeseville patrol.

The two youths, Michael Pastorella, 19, of 366 East 42nd street, New York, and Martin Plink, 17, of 72 Lewis street, New York, were brought to the county court house here for questioning previous to arraignment.

During the period that Plink was under questioning, Pastorella was left in the custody of officers at the sheriff's office. He sat quietly for a few minutes and then asked the office deputy if he might be directed to the men's rest room.

He was escorted there and, in some manner, managed to elude the deputies. His absence was discovered in a few minutes and deputies immediately started out to rearrest him.

It was quick work. Pastorella was picked up a short distance from the business section, headed out of the city as fast as he could walk.

When questioning of Plink had been completed, Pastorella, resigned to the fact that authority comes first, was calmly sitting in the same chair in which state police had left him only ten minutes before.

Pastorella and Plink were later arraigned before Acting City Judge Sherlock E. Haley in municipal court. They pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Pastorella was sentenced to a term of 30 days in the county jail; Plink to a term of 25 days.

SUPER-MARKET TO BE OPENED

Grand Union Co. Leases Lower Part of Hannan & Henry Garage

Opening of one of northern New York's finest and most modern super-markets is anticipated by the Grand Union Company. It was learned yesterday by the Daily Press. The new market will be located at the site of the former Hannan & Henry garage on Margaret street, just north of Cornell street.

The super-market will occupy the entire first floor of the two-story brick building, the southern section being used for the display of grocery, meats and vegetable stocks and the north end converted into stock rooms. In other words, approximately 75 per cent of floor space will be utilized as a sales room.

Two new entrances will be fashioned and a new floor constructed with local workmen employed in the alterations. The building has been used recently as a automobile display room by the E. S. Mason, Inc., automobile agency and also by the National Youth Administration.

It is expected that the new market will be formally opened to the public within the next eight weeks. The deal was arranged through Herbert Hannan of Ogdensburg.

The Grand Union Company recently opened new super-markets at both Lake Placid and Tupper Lake.

DELINQUENCY AMONG MINORS RAMPANT HERE

Ten of 20 Prisoners in County Jail Are 20 Years Or Under

Solving of the problem of juvenile delinquency in Plattsburgh and Clinton county will be the number one order of business this fall for many civic leaders and it is expected that conferences of clergy, service organizations and the courts will be called to consider ways and means of correcting the situation.

Throughout the present summer a large number of minors have come under the probe of police authorities for crimes ranging from misdemeanors to major offenses. Rarely has a week passed without the detention of one or more minors by police and their arraignment in juvenile court.

This week perhaps found the greatest number of violations by youths. Last night at the Clinton county jail there were a total of 20 prisoners in the custody of the sheriff. Of these, ten are minors, ranging from 20 years down to 18. Several of them are being held for the grand jury for alleged commission of felonies.

Funeral services for Judge Henry T. Kellogg, 73, who died at his home at Valcour Sunday, were held at Trinity Episcopal church yesterday at 2:00 p.m., with Rev. Henry N. Herndon, rector, officiating. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery where Rev. Herndon recited prayers at the grave.

Honorary pall bearers included Hon. Augustus M. Hand, judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Hon. Christopher J. Heffernan, Justice of the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court; Hon. O. Byron Brewster, Justice of the New York State Supreme Court; Hon. Frederick H. Bryant, Judge of the United States District Court; Hon. Ellsworth C. Lawrence, Judge of the United States District Court; Thomas F. Conway, Patrick J. Tierney, I. H. Chabon, John P. Myers and John T. O'Brien.

Delegations representing the Bar Associations of Clinton, Essex, and Franklin counties attended the services as did the Champlain Valley hospital's Board of Directors of which Judge Kellogg was a member.

FUEL OIL SHORTAGE

With the present fuel oil shortage and servant problem, no doubt small families would not only be happier but it would be more economical to close their homes for the winter months.

In view of this fact, the management of HOTEL WITHERILL have decided to make a drastic cut in their room rates for the winter months.

Our rooms are all in excellent condition with comfortable beds with innerspring mattresses and we invite the public to call and inspect the rooms and get our very attractive rates.

AIR MECHANIC TRAINING AT UTICA N. Y. A.

Girls Between Ages of 17½ and 24 Are Offered Fine Opportunities

Girls in Clinton and Essex counties, who are interested in types of work relating to aviation, will be interested to learn that the Utica N.Y.A. Aviation Ground Mechanic center for girls will open September 16.

Requirements for entrance to this Center include being between the age brackets of 17 and a half years to 24 years; being an American citizen and a High school graduate; having a knowledge of algebra, geometry and preferably physics, and being physically and mentally capable of profiting by the type of training which will be provided.

Aviation training is divided into six units, aviation engines, aircraft fabrication, tubular welding, electrical equipment, repair and maintenance, including radio installation and aircraft woodwork.

Each youth will be required to give 160 hours per month in work training of which a minimum of 100 hours will be in training and a maximum of 60 hours in project work. The project work will be in machine shop practices, aircraft woodwork, industrial sewing related to parachute repair service. Each youth will receive $10.80 in cash plus room and board and emergency medical service.

The facilities of this center are three newly constructed buildings—one being combined administration, building and dining hall, second a "U" shaped two-story dormitory building with the wings being connected by a lounge, infirmary and reading room, and the third being the training shops and central heating plant. The facilities can accommodate 200 girls in residence. It is expected to enroll the first 50 on September 15 and the remaining 150 on October 1. Transportation is furnished by N.Y.A. to the Center.

The training program has been set up on a four-month basis and to meet U.S. Civil Service requirements, and will not qualify trainees for C.A.A. licenses. This means that a trainee who completes the course is approved by the Civil Service Commission, has U.S. Government approval for employment in aviation work, which at the present time covers a wide scope of employment that is true of C.A.A. licensed workers. In this connection the Center has established qualifications for admission to the project that are in keeping with Civil Service requirements and standards established by the director of training in the U.S. Army Air depot, Rome, New York, where it is expected that the great majority of girls completing the training will find employment.

Girls in Clinton and Essex counties interested in making application for the Utica Center should contact the nearest United States Employment office or write direct to Harry F. Clark, field interviewer, N.Y.A., Clinton and Essex counties, City Hall, Plattsburgh. Phone 1128. Mr. Clark will be only too glad to call on any youth in either counties.

Messages of condolences were received from former associates of Judge Kellogg on the Court of Appeals and from many prominent State and government officials.

BOND PLEDGE DRIVE HERE IS PROGRESSING

Air Raid Wardens Meet Ready Response in Half of Canvass

The half-way mark in the current appeal for the systematic purchase of Defense Bonds and Stamps, being made through the medium of a canvass by air raid wardens in all parts of the city and county, has been reached, it was announced last night by Edward B. Doherty, chairman of the Clinton county committee.

Though all air raid wardens have not yet completed their total number of assigned calls, reports from those who have completed their canvass are most gratifying, Mr. Doherty said. In some instances the amount of the purchase has been as high as $100.00.

"This success," Mr. Doherty pointed out, "is an indication that the public in general is aware of the immediate need for everyone to purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps. The results being attained reflects highly on the American people's understanding of the seriousness of the situation."

He went on to explain that the air raid wardens have nothing to sell. Rather, they are contacting the people in their assigned districts and making a pledge canvass to ask for promises that Defense Bonds and Stamps will be purchased to the limit of the individuals' ability to buy and that these
